Honored on 50th Anniversary

A former Coleman couple, Mr. and Mrs. J. Smith of Marysville, B.C. were honored on the occasion of their 50th Wedding Anniversary in the Coleman Elks Hall on Saturday, May 25th when approximately 175 relatives and guests sat down to a delicious turkey supper. Various bouquets of flowers adorned the hall brought from Vancouver, B.C. by Mrs. Mary Navy, sister of Mrs. J. Smith.

Seated at the head table were Mr. David Gillespie, father of Mrs. Smith, the honored guests Mr. and Mrs. J. Smith, their daughter Cherry and her husband Mr. and Mrs. Sandy Sanderson, Mr. David Smith and his wife Edith and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rogers. The table was centered with a two tier cake, topped with a gold bell embedded in tulle and flanked with gold colored candles and vases of heather.

Mr. J. Parks acting as master of ceremonies, called on Mr. Peter Walker to say Grace. Mr. A. Westworth, nephew of the honored couple gave the toast to which Mr. Smith ably responded. At the conclusion of the supper Mr. Dave Gillespie, father of Mrs. Smith, 95 years of age, gave a very interesting talk quote: "Mr. chairman and friends I am pleased to be present tonight and able to take part in this celebration. I take it that you are all familiar with the old saying that the Old Grey Mare Aint What She Used To Be. I am sure that I am not what I used to be, yet the fact that I can still get around a little under my own steam adds greatly to the pleasure that enables me to be present here tonight. I am sure that our honored couple here never thought for a moment that they would be here tonight receiving congratulations on attaining 50 years of wedded bliss together. 50 years ago they were living very much in the present, the future was the least of their concern, now like many of us they are living on cherished memories of the past. It just goes to show how large a part time plays and is a factor in the shaping of our lives. Jack and Lizzie you were brought here tonight to enable your family and friends to have the opportunity of showing you both how much they loved, honored and respected you and to express the wish that you would be with them for many more years yet and I am sure all your friends present here tonight will join with me in wishing you both many more years of good health and lots of happiness to sit back in ease and comfort and enjoy the Life of Riley."

A program of music and song was then enjoyed, including a song by their daughter (Cherry) Mrs. S. Sanderson, her brother David Smith accompanying her on the piano. Mrs. K. Parks sang the beautiful old Scotch song "My Ain Folk" accompanied at the piano by Lorraine Fontana of Lethbridge and a sword dance by a Scotch lassie Mrs. Pat Kovalk, in full costume. A mock wedding skit was then presented by their grand children and husbands and wives and a friend Lavann Leggett which brought down roars of laughter and applause. Piano selections were then played by David Smith and community singing was enjoyed.

Mr. Parks, master of ceremonies, then called order and requested Mrs. Nettie Bayon, sister of the honored guests, to make the presentation of a beautiful set of lamps including a Pole Lamp and a table Lamp in gold and white marbled finish, Mrs. A. Westworth, a sister of the honored guests, was asked to present a set of Blue and White Ironstone Dishes, the gift from everyone present. Mr. and Mrs. Smith very ably thanked all present for their thoughtfulness and the beautiful gifts and kind wishes bestowed upon them. Their son David also thanked everyone with a special thanks to his Aunt Bella and Aunt Nan.

During the evening many pictures were taken the highlight of them being a picture of five generations of the family, including Mr. Dave Gillespie, his daughter Mrs. Smith, his grand daughter Mrs. Sanderson, great grand daughter Mrs. Cherrill Holden and great-grand great children Rae Dennett Holden and Danny Holden.

The floor was then cleared and dancing music was enjoyed by all.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Smith were married in Coleman on May 24, 1918, they have two children David of Kamloops, B.C. and (Cherry) Mrs. S. Sanderson of Kimberley, B.C., six grand children and two great grand children. They lived in Coleman until 15 years ago when they moved to Marysville, B.C. to be near their family. Mr. Smith is retired but still enjoys his hobbies of fishing and gardening. Mrs. Smith enjoys crocheting, embroidery work, knitting and (baby sitting).

Old friends in Coleman and the Journal wish them many more years of married bliss.

AN ANSWER TO VIOLENCE

The United States is facing another torrid summer of Negro violence. Even right here among Canadians, who pride themselves on being a sane and placid peoples, there are rumbles of revolutionary violence in the province of Quebec.

There is only one effective answer to revolution, and that is orderly change. But it has to be genuine change. Too often, promises made by politicians and by governments of all levels are broken. People with just grievances are told there will be change, but it never comes. And then officials are surprised at the resulting violence.

Repression against people seeking social justice - whether it is meted out by policemen wielding truncheons or by armies using artillery and bombers - can never succeed.

A far more effective tool in fighting revolutionary violence, particularly in the developing countries is modernization. This does not mean supplying villagers with refrigerators they don't need, or trying to persuade Negroes to trade their ancient jalopies for the latest 1968 model sedans.

It means modernizing whole societies, altering social structures, discarding ancient and often feudal traditions that have lost their usefulness in the 20th century. Western governments can assist not only backward nations to move ahead, but also the poor and the dispossessed in their own countries.

First, however, the West must take a hard look at itself, and ask whether the ambitions it is fostering among its own people are those that will lead to a peaceful, progressive world. Modernization of men's minds must start at home before we can preach successfully to other nations about the boons of Western civilization.

The Forest Fire Season

There are a few means of preventing forest fires which should be kept in mind by a population that is conscious of its duty and responsibility towards the forest. Without the close and constant co-operation of the public, the most advanced forest protection agency remains powerless in the face of the everpresent threat of fire. For this reason, it is imperative that all forest users observe scrupulously all rules and regulations, and be ever watchful for that moment of carelessness that could result in a catastrophic disaster.

Here are a few rules of conduct that all forest users should know and observe strictly through the fire season:

- Never go in the forest without a travel permit, or when the forest is closed.
- Never smoke while travelling or working in the woods, and never throw a lighted match, cigar or cigarette from a vehicle.
- Never light a cooking fire elsewhere but at the waters edge, or in a specified camp area.
- Never remove or destroy fire prevention posters and always check carefully the fire hazard indicator panel.
- Always use a metallic container to make a smudge fire.
- Make sure there is a spark arrestor on the chimney before using a campstove.
- Always dispose of forest debris around buildings.
- Always be extremely vigilant when the fire hazard is high.
- Always extinguish if possible, any unattended fire, or get the fire ranger and help him put it out.

Dress Rehearsal

A drowning person in panic is his own worst enemy. Overwhelmed by fear, he gasps for air and gulps water instead. He expends energy at a terrific rate until he's too weak to struggle and finally loses consciousness. Chances for revival diminish rapidly. As the minutes tick away the heart and brain stop functioning.

To help swimmers and non-swimmers combat panic in a drowning situation, Red Cross has developed a new water safety course.

It's called Survival swimming.

Most of the tests require the candidate to wear light clothing instead of a bathing suit. In more ways than one, it's like a dress rehearsal for drowning.

hearsal for drowning.

One test requires a Forward Roll Entry into the water. This simulates the way most people enter the water and drown either by falling off a dock or out of a capsizing boat. Confusion results. Underwater it is difficult to establish which way is up. Learning how to orient one self quickly helps overcome panic.

Survival Swimming can be taken entirely on its own or as part of the regular Red Cross swimming programme after Junior level. Courses are conducted under the guidance of a Red Cross trained Instructor and are available in most communities this summer.

June 23 to 29 is Red Cross Water Safety Week. This summer we join with Red Cross and urge you to be careful in, on or near the water.

Read The Label

(By A. E. Bridges, Alberta Fire Commissioner)

Unfortunately serious injuries and even deaths from fire occur from lack of attention to a warning label, says A. E. Bridges, Alberta Fire Commissioner.

Some fire prevention practices hinge entirely upon an adult's ability to read. It must often occur that workmen are instructed as to their duties but do not know the product or perhaps may lack an opportunity to investigate the nature of the product they are using.

Certain adhesives contain highly volatile flammable liquids. If so, there will be a warning on the container: "Caution, Keep Away From Open Flames". Even if the warning is noticed, workmen have been known to forget to put out the pilot light on a stove or hot water heater. Every year we record fires caused by ignition of adhesive glue or cement. Almost always they involve the workmen, causing serious burns.

"Read the Label and take precautions," says the Fire Commissioner. "It will prevent a fire."

Tonsils Do Serve A Purpose

Contrary to common belief tonsils do serve a useful purpose, according to The Canadian Medical Association. They contain a great many cells known as lymphocytes which perform a very important function to help protect you from a variety of infections.

Children are exposed to many more infections than the average adult. During this period the tonsils are large. As the child reaches the age of nine or ten, the tonsils become smaller, and by the time adult life is reached, the tonsils have usually served their function and become so small they are difficult to locate.

There are indication for the removal of tonsils. Among them are repeated tonsil infections, especially if these have been accompanied by infections of the ear or difficulty with hearing due to these infections. Children who have had an abscess around one or both of the tonsils should have the tonsils removed after the acute infection is over. Small children who have difficulty in eating and sleeping because of obstruction from adenoids in the back of the nose or from grossly enlarged tonsils often benefit by having tonsils and adenoids removed.

It should be remembered that tonsils are notably larger in children than in adults, and their presence is beneficial. They do not normally cause loss of appetite, growth retardation or the host of other conditions they are frequently blamed for, and used as an excuse for their removal.

The removal of tonsils and adenoids is a surgical operation. It should be performed only when there are specific indications. Removal of the tonsils in any other circumstances will not benefit the patient in any way shape or form.

By the time most people get to green pastures, they are too old to climb over the fence.

Directory Assistance Replaces Information

After June 23, telephone users seeking assistance in locating a telephone number will be hearing a new phrase. "Directory Assistance" will replace the word "Information". Alberta Government Telephones is introducing this new program in an effort to reduce the volume of requests for numbers that are listed in the telephone directory.

A survey conducted last year showed that 70 percent of the requests received by the information units were listed in the directories. On an average day in Calgary, 23, 711 calls for information are received; Red Deer handles 2,657; Peace River, 632; and Lethbridge, 2,947.

Information operators' records are marked to indicate the listings that have been changed or added after the subscribers' directory was published. The main purpose of the information service is to assist customers with telephone numbers that have changed or are difficult to locate.

In addition to the term "Directory Assistance", the information operators will be using informative phrases suggesting that the customer become familiar with the directory and use it for its intended purpose. Personal directories are available at all AGT Business Offices for recording frequently called numbers.

Similar programs have been adopted by other telephone companies and have proven successful in reducing the number of calls for information.

HILLCREST FISH & GAME HOLD ANNUAL SMOKER

A smoker, dance and evening of bingo attended by over 80 members was held to mark the 45th annual meeting of the Hillcrest Fish and Game Association.

White pine and oak were first reserved for Royal Navy ship construction.

Six species of hickory are found in Canada.

Air Canada has ordered three 368-passenger Boeing 747 jetliners (pictured above) costing $20 million each for delivery in 1971. These 600 mph aircraft offer a new dimension in air travel comfort and will be introduced on the company's transcontinental and trans-Atlantic routes in the summer of 1971. The main cabin area, extending forward to the nose of the aircraft, is 20 feet wide—seven feet wider than in present jets—allowing extra room for a lounge or private passenger area. There will also be an upper level behind the cockpit—connected to the main cabin area by a circular stairway—with space for a second lounge, business office, or private stateroom with bed.

Does the Best Man ever win?

Well, your buddy is getting married and wants you for best man. Isn't that great? Sure. Just one or two little things... like the wedding will be in another city, and you'll have to rent a dinner jacket, and you'd like to go.

Moments like this, you're a wise man if you can take advantage of complete banking service at the Commerce. One account—your Chequing Account, you use for month-to-month expenses.

And the other—your Savings Account—makes sure you've kept cash on hand.

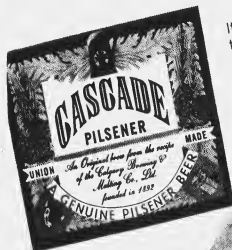

So go ahead. Call the airline. Rent the jacket. Spring for that nice chunk of Eskimo art. And have fun at the wedding. When there's cash on hand at the Commerce, the best man wins.

CORRECT LOADING OF LAUNDRY EQUIPMENT

Pounds are not an accurate gauge of washer capacity. Bulk is the best way to determine the wash load. Load your machine about two-thirds full and mix your loads as to size of articles (not more than two shets at a time).

Clothes must circulate freely to avoid tangling and possible damage by the agitator. To avoid wrinkling, launder wash-and-wear articles in loads of half the usual size.

SOAP OR DETERGENT
There is no one soap or detergent that is best on all counts. Choose according to water conditions, degree and type of soil, type of fabric and type of washing action.

In soft or softened water soap does an excellent job and is economical to use. Soap holds soil in suspension so that it does not become re-deposited on clothes. However, in hard water soap forms a curd that does not rinse out.

Synthetic detergents dissolve readily in hot, cold, hard or soft water but work most effectively in soft water.

If the product is soap, the word "Soap" appears somewhere on the box. Detergents may or may not be labelled on the box.

AMOUNT OF SOAP OR DETERGENT TO USE

There is no hard and fast rule as to how much soap or detergent to use; it varies with the hardness of water, water temperature, the amount of soil, the size of wash load, the type of detergent and the kind of washer. With any sudsing product, there should be suds maintained throughout the entire wash cycle to prevent re-deposition of soil on clothes.

The use of excess suds is not only very wasteful, but also is very difficult to rinse out, it retards wash action, causes yellowing of fabrics, skin irritations and overloads the sewer system with suds.

GENERAL RULES

High sudsing product -  $\frac{1}{4}$  to 2 cups (for top loaders)
Liquid High sudsing product -  $\frac{1}{4}$  to  $\frac{1}{2}$  cup (for top loaders)
Low or Controlled sudsing product -  $\frac{1}{4}$  to  $\frac{1}{2}$  cups (for front loaders)

Repeated laundering with soap in hard water or the use of excess soap and poor rinsing should be run through a regular wash cycle with a double dose of water softener and no soap or detergent. This will strip accumulated soap from garments.

BLEACH
Bleach is most effective when used in the wash cycle with hot soap and water. Do not use in the rinse cycle especially for items such as diapers. Measure according to the manufacturer's directions and do not over-bleach. This will weaken fibres. Dilute bleach before adding to the machine and always choose bleach that is suitable for the particular fabric.
